THE CAST

D. DIBRELL

Founder - Publisher - Editor in Chief

Jack Watson is an award winning producer/film maker with 30 years of experience. Jack's photos have been featured in Full Throttle Magazine, Sport Aviation, Plane and Pilot and Playboy.com.

Yancy Mendoza has a slightly skewed way of viewing the world through his lens - RAW natural artist. His art has been on exhibit @ Seattle Erotic Art Festival, The San Francisco Erotic Art Exhibition, and Masquerotica.

Honey West is an Editor at large for Top Floor Magazine.

HW is also a writer of erotic books with a number of titles under her belt. She started with TFM as a provider of monthly erotic stories until moving from the world of erotica to interviews with a number of adult actresses and actors as well as radio host and other writers of erotica. She is also the creator of Mistress Dark Angel that has been featured in several issues of TFM. HW has also written several e-books including Orgy Beach, Exam Day, Tanya's Treatment and Humorotica which can be found at A1adultbooks.com.

Owner of Studio k, Eddie has also been providing outstanding photography for Top Floor Magazine for more than three years.

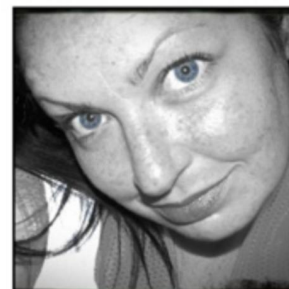

Clint Miller is the owner/photographer at Dreamscapes photography and also staff photographer for the Colorado chapter of Patriot Girls, and organization that sells posters and magazines for charity.

Fred Jennings is a good friend of TFM photographer Eddie Mc.

He recently moved to Pennsylvania and is working hard to help establish the Top Floor footprint in that state. His first TFM cover was for the April 2014 issue ft. Kaleena.

Stephanie - Director of Social Media for TFM.

Top Urban Legends

A teenage girl was home with her little sister one weekend while their parents were out of town. After watching some television together, she sent her little sister to bed and then went back downstairs to watch more TV. Eventually, she got bored with what she was watching and turned it off, then curled up in a blanket on the couch and watched the snow fall through the large sliding-glass window in the living room.

She had only been watching for a few minutes when she saw a man walking toward the sliding glass doors with deadly purpose. He started to pull something shiny out of his coat and she dove under her blanket in terror.

After a while, she pulled down the blanket and found that the man was gone. She called the police, who immediately rushed over to the scene to investigate. Upon examining the premises, one of the first things they noticed was that there were no footprints in the snow. And with the rate of snowfall, there was no way they could have been covered that quickly. Puzzled, the officers inspected the residence and noticed wet footprints on the carpet leading straight up to the couch where the girl had been sitting. The madman had been behind her the whole time and what she had seen had been his reflection in the window.

During a late night of studying, she realized that she had forgotten something in her dorm room, so she decided to make a trip back to go get it.

When she opened the door she found the room dark, but figured that her roommate was either asleep or out studying like her.

Not wanting to disturb her in case she was asleep, she left the light off, grabbed what she needed, and went back to the library. Upon returning to her room, she found her roommate lying on the floor with a slit throat. But the worst part was the message written in lipstick on the bathroom mirror that read simply, "Aren't you glad you didn't turn on the light?"

WorldMags.net

It was late and a young woman was driving through an unfamiliar area deep in the country. Her car was old and unreliable, and soon she realized that she'd have to stop for gas soon if she didn't want to start walking. As luck would have it, she came across an old gas station a little farther down the road. It was an old-fashioned station, the kind with an attendant who comes out to pump the gas, and something about it set the alarm bells ringing in her head. But she knew that she couldn't get much farther without refueling, so she reluctantly pulled into the gas station and asked the attendant to fill up the tank.

The attendant seemed nervous as he filled up her gas tank, but eventually he finished the job and came over to the driver's side to get the payment. She gave him a $20 bill and he examined it carefully, then told her that it was counterfeit. At this point the alarm bells weren't ringing any more—they were rioting. The attendant explained that he would have to take her back to his office and call his manager, because the counterfeit would have to be reported to the bank. Once he had convinced her to come with him, he explained that the bill wasn't actually counterfeit—he'd gotten her out of the car because there was a man with a hatchet hiding in the backseat.

It is said that there was once a stunningly beautiful woman who was married to a Samurai. The samurai believed her to be adulterous, and in his rage he slit her mouth open from ear to ear and taunted by saying 'Now who's going to think you're beautiful?' The slit mouth woman, known in Japanese as Kuchisake-onna, lurks on the streets in Japan wearing a surgical mask. If you have the bad luck of coming into contact with her, she will ask you a question – 'Do you think I'm beautiful?' If you answer 'Yes', she'll rip off her mask and scream 'What about NOW?'.

If you answer the second time, 'No', the legend suggests that you will die a grisly death at the hand of the woman and her oversized pair of scissors. The scariest part is, even if you answer 'Yes' the second time, so warped is her mind that she will still slit your mouth open, so that you can be just as 'pretty' as she is. You can't just run away either – if you try to escape, every time you turn around still be standing there.

Right in front of you.

A teenage girl is babysitting two children, one boy and one girl, as a favor to a family friend. The parents are going out on a date night, and the father asks the babysitter to stay in a specific room to watch TV after she puts the kids to bed – the parents don't really want her roaming around the house.

The kids have gone to bed, and the babysitter goes into the room to watch TV and wait for the parents to return – but she notices a clown statue in the corner of the room as she's settling in. Clown statues are inherently creepy, but she tries to ignore it for a while, but the room begins to feel more and more unsettling as time goes on. Her pulse is racing and she's beginning to panic, so she calls the father and says "I put the kids to bed already – is it alright if I move into another room? This weird clown statue is really unsettling."

The father immediately tells her to get the kids and to immediately go to the neighbor's house and call 911. She asks him if anything is wrong and he tells her to just do it and call back when she's at the neighbor's. So she rushes to get the kid, goes to the neighbor's house, and asks if she can use the phone to call the police.

After all that, she dials the father again and asks him for an explanation.

He tells her that they don't have a clown statue in the house.

TRUE URBAN LEGEND

Brian was in the town of Abilene, sitting in his car and attempting using the light of a nearby building – a movie theatre – to try a write out a check. He hears someone tapping on the window on the driver's side. He looks up and sees two boys dressed in hoodies, standing outside his locked car door. He rolls down the window, not sure of what to expect, when the hairs on the back of his neck begin to stand on end. An inexplicable dread-like fear grabs hold of him. One of the boys explains that they need a ride back home to get cash for a movie. Despite his fear, he felt his hand straying towards the lock on the car door – then yanked his hand away.

His blood ran cold - both the children had eyes that were fully black as pitch. No iris. No pupil.

That's when Brian muttered an apology, hastily rolled up the window, and drove away with haste. As his car pulled away, the older boy knocked on the window with some force, yelling - We can't come in unless you tell us it's OK. LET US IN."

Q & A

Top Floor Magazine answers the questions submitted to the Playboy Advisor

My fiancé always sucks my thumb during sex. Does that mean she wants to have sex with two men at once? - S.S., Fort Lauderdale, Florida

Hmm...I can only tell what I've read. When a woman is using a device on herself while giving you oral pleasure, it increases her pleasure. Let me explain, there is something about the sucking, not just having a penis in their mouth that increases a woman's sexual libido and creates faster and stronger orgasms. That's no bullshit! Picture this, when you're just about there and don't want to finish too soon what do you do? Breathe slowly. And right before you're ready to hit that moment, what do you do? I would argue that you gasp for breathe. Am I right? There something about the change in the intake of air and I can't really explain it. So, she maybe just sucking your thumb for that reason, it helps to get her off.

I am a college student and virgin struggling on the dating scene. I am well-read and can be witty but have no skills at the approach - those 30 seconds when you smile and try to make an impression. Also, I feel that by introducing myself I am admitting that I'm interested, which gives her the upper hand and makes me feel vulnerable. Do you have any tips for an initial approach? - V.D., Phoenix, Arizona

I sure do! First, you need to scrap the idea of an "initial approach" because the entire experience should be natural and organic. This advice comes from a woman. Do not go from woman to woman introducing yourself, other women see that and though they will be polite, you have been X'd for the evening. My advice is to have a good time and if there is a young lady close by that you're attracted to, make her a part of it. Dance with her, talk to her, make your "introduction" very natural, not forced.

Getting into the Spirit

Over the past eight years we have had a number of models that have embraced the spirit of Halloween. They break out their costumes and/or make-up and really go at it. Here are some of my favorites!

JILL DE VRIES

Jill De Vries was Playboy magazine's Playmate of the Month for the October 1975 issue. Her centerfold was photographed by Dwight Hooker. De Vries's was the first Playboy centerfold to be signed by the model. De Vries was studying to be a teacher at the time of her pictorial.

She appeared briefly as a call girl in the 1983 comedy Risky Business. She was also the cover model for the Christina novels Seriously?

John Boehner is resigning from Congress.

After two debates, Donald Trump is STILL leading in the GOP polls.

Kanye West plans to run for President...yes, of the United States, in 2016.

Ashton Kutcher and Mila Kunis - formerly of the 70's Show are dating...in REAL life!

People are saying that Kim Davis was jailed for her religious beliefs - Seriously? She was jailed for refusing to follow the law and just do her damn job.

Coming soon, your dog will be sending you selfies! Petbot has developed a camera that holds treats, you can call your dog through the box and when Fido comes over to grab a treat, the device snaps a photo and uploads it to your phone.

A Greek architect has designed a desk that will be on the wish list of every employee in the world.

The desk converts to a bed, making it the perfect place for a lunch time nap or resting place for those long hours at the office.

Going Viral: A UFC fighter throws up during a match after his opponent farts in his face.

Busty Enki Bracaj landed her television anchor job with a bold move...she took the screen test with her blouse unbuttoned. Ratings hit the roof and Enki became an international celebrity. Then she was suspended for entering into talks with Playboy for a possible pictorial.

Stephanie Rose's Thorns

It's that time of year again, where everything that was once normal becomes a bit spookier. Pumpkins, ghosts, witches, and haunted houses, all are things that go along with Halloween but I have found some facts about Halloween I bet you never knew before now.

- There is a $1000.00 fine for using or selling Silly String in Hollywood on Halloween.
- Dressing up on Halloween comes from the Celts.
- The moniker "Halloween" comes from the Catholics.
- Halloween symbols are not random. They are usually associated with witches in the Middle Ages and are considered "bad luck".
- Fear of poisoned Halloween candy is unfounded.
- A Full Moon on Halloween is extremely rare.
- We should be carving turnips and not pumpkins.
- Halloween is still the Wiccan New Year.
- Trick or treating was first known as guising or souling and was re-popularized by cartoons.

- And last but not least... behind Christmas, Halloween the most commercial Holiday of the year.

Now that you have all of this little known knowledge about Halloween go forth and decorate with carved turnips for the season and go crazy with Silly String (if you're not in Hollywood). Have that crazy Halloween party and don't forget to go souling... and if you know any Wiccans wish them a Happy New Year!

Happy Halloween!

LEGEND OCTOBER 2ND

The true story of the rise and fall of London's most notorious gangsters, Reggie and Ron Kray, both portrayed by Tom Hardy in a double performance. Legend is a classic crime thriller taking us into the secret history of the 1960s and the extraordinary events that secured the infamy of the Kray twins.

IN THEATRES NOW

The Perfect Guy

The Perfect Guy follows a woman (Lathan) who meets an IT expert (Ealy), who seems to be the perfect guy. But after a sexually-charged courtship, she sees a violent side of him and dissolves the budding relationship. In a jealous rage and fueled by insane revenge, he disrupts her life.

The Visit

The Visit focuses on a brother and sister who are sent to their grandparents' remote Pennsylvania farm for a weeklong trip. Once the children discover that the elderly couple is involved in something deeply disturbing, they see their chances of getting back home are growing smaller every day.

This Changes Everything

Shot over 211 days and in nine countries spanning five continents over four years, the film re-imagines climate change.

Cowspiracy

The film explores the devastating impact of animal agriculture on the environment, and investigates the policies of environmental organizations on this issue.

Environmental organizations investigated in the film include Greenpeace, Sierra Club, Surfrider Foundation, Rainforest Action Network, and many more.

If you eat meat, which most of us do, this will turn your entire life upside down.

Just when you thought that you could still count on certain things in your life to be the truth, especially when it comes to the food we eat - you will find this to be a lie. The most shocking part is the people who are lying to you and why.

Anchorman 2

I laughed my ass off from start to finish. This film hit too close to home. Without giving too much away, there is a scene in the movie that played out on the news the exact same way the next day.

Maggie

A completely different take on the zombie genre. This is the emotional journey of a Dad, that's played brilliantly by Arnold, having to deal with a young daughter that is turning.

Album of the Month

Every time I listen to Lana del Rey, it's like floating above clouds. Her voice is so smooth that it hits you like a smooth breeze. Her new album Honeymoon is a nice mix of tension and love as she seems to empty her soul over retro tracks that more than compliment her voice and style.

This album has a certain timelessness to it that will be more than inviting to most who enjoy really good music.

The Puma

So we're being told to...

- Vote for climate change friendly candidates
- Use renewable energy sources like solar and wind
- Changes our light bulbs
- Lower our thermostat
- Turn off your air conditioner
- Switch out all of our appliances for more energy efficient ones
- Take public transportation
- Recycle

So I went out and bought all energy saver light bulbs, purchased a high energy washer, dryer and refrigerator and yelled at my family to turn off the lights.

To find out that it was all bullshit!

Full disclosure, I did find one site that listed the real problem...one.

Why is it all bullshit? Well...

Methane gas packs about 72 times the punch of carbon dioxide and no one even mentions it.

Let me hit you with another list of facts from the documentary Cowspiracy -

- Livestock and their byproducts account for at least 32,000 million tons of carbon dioxide (CO₂) per year, or 51% of all worldwide greenhouse gas emissions.
- Animal agriculture is responsible for 18 percent of greenhouse gas emissions, more than the combined exhaust from all transportation.
- Methane is 25-100 times more destructive than CO₂ on a 20 year time frame.
- Methane has a global warming potential 86 times that of CO₂ on a 20 year time frame.

- Livestock is responsible for 65% of all human-related emissions of nitrous oxide – a greenhouse gas with 296 times the global warming potential of carbon dioxide, and which stays in the atmosphere for 150 years.
- Emissions for agriculture projected to increase 80% by 2050.
- Energy related emissions expected to increase 20% by 2040.
- Cows produce 150 billion gallons of methane per day.
- Even without fossil fuels, we will exceed our 565 gigatonnes CO₂e limit by 2030, all from raising animals.
- Agriculture is responsible for 80-90% of US water consumption.
- Californians use 1500 gallons of water per person per day. Close to Half is associated with meat and dairy products.
- 2,500 gallons of water are needed to produce 1 pound of beef.
- 477 gallons of water are required to produce 1lb. of eggs; almost 900 gallons of water are needed for 1lb. of cheese.
- 5% of water consumed in the US is by private homes. 55% of water consumed in the US is for animal agriculture.
- Livestock covers 45% of the earth's total land.
- Animal agriculture is the leading cause of species extinction, ocean dead zones, water pollution, and habitat destruction.
- Livestock operations on land have created more than 500 nitrogen flooded deadzones around the world in our oceans.
- Every minute, 7 million pounds of excrement are produced by animals raised for food in the US.
- In the U.S. livestock produce 116,000 lbs of waste per second.

The Truth about Global Warming

The world is being turned upside down with the debate over global warming. It has been said humans are causing the atmosphere to warm through the emissions of CO₂.

Humans have increased that amount of CO₂ (carbon dioxide) in the atmosphere through our dependence and continued use of fossil fuels.

They state as fact that there is empirical evidence that rising temperatures are caused by increased CO₂.

The earth is wrapped in an invisible blanket.

Without that blanket the earth's temperature would be too cold to sustain life. The only reason we are able to maintain life is because of the greenhouse gases in the atmosphere that keep the earth warm by capturing some of the heat from the sun, not allowing it to re-radiate back into space.

If we add more greenhouse gases into the atmosphere, what would happen?

The blanket gets thicker and the planet stays warmer.

One of the ways that scientists measure the effect of CO₂ is by the use of satellites to measure how much energy is arriving from the sun against how much is escaping back into space.

Over the past few decades the amount of energy that escapes has been getting lower and lower. Of course, the amount of energy from the sun has remained the same.

The greenhouse gases are comprised of carbon dioxide, methane, water vapor and ozone.

The CO₂ levels in the air have gone from 280 parts per million to 400 parts per million: an increase of 43% in the last 150 years.

The final "smoking gun" is the amount of energy that CO₂ captures. Scientists claim that most of the energy is being captured by CO₂.

- For every 1 pound of fish caught, up to 5 pounds of unintended marine species are caught and discarded as by-kill.
- As many as 40% (63 billion pounds) of fish caught globally every year are discarded.
- Animal agriculture is responsible for up to 91% of Amazon destruction.
- 1-2 acres of rainforest are cleared every second.
- 136 million rainforest acres cleared for animal agriculture.
- 80% of antibiotic sold in the US are for livestock.

The list goes on and on!

So why the fuck am I being told to change a light bulb and buy new appliances?

The beef, fishing and dairy industries are all multi-billion dollar businesses with lobbyist out the ass.

What really pissed me off was that the environmental groups that we depend on to blow the whistle on something this obvious have gone silent on this issue. Organizations like Greenpeace, Oceana and The Sierra Club are all fighting for clean energy while ignoring the real problem.

What's worse is there is a direct correlation between the consumption of meat, fish and dairy and heart disease, stroke and cancer.

- The World Health Organization has determined that dietary factors account for at least 30 percent of all cancers in Western countries and up to 20 percent in developing countries. When cancer researchers started to search for links between diet and cancer, one of the most noticeable findings was that people who avoided meat were much less likely to develop the disease. Large studies in England and Germany showed that vegetarians were about 40 percent less likely to develop cancer compared to meat eaters.

- (cont.) Harvard studies showed that daily meat eaters have approximately three times the colon cancer risk, compared to those who rarely eat meat. - <http://www.pcrm.org/health/cancer-resources/diet-cancer/facts/meat-consumption-and-cancer-risk>
- Researchers have found that when we eat red meat, there is a set of reactions mediated by microbes in our gut. These gut microbe reactions are triggered by carnitine, a nutrient found in red meat. The study found that these reactions, which were previously unrecognized, contribute to the development of heart disease.
- In observational studies both across countries and within single populations, higher dairy intake has been linked to increased risk of prostate cancer.
- Observational cohort studies have shown higher dairy intake is linked to higher ovarian cancer risk.
- Cow's milk protein may play a role in triggering type 1 diabetes through a process called molecular mimicry.
- Across countries, populations that consume more dairy have higher rates of multiple sclerosis.
- In interventional animal experiments and human studies, dairy protein has been shown to increase IGF-1 (Insulin-like Growth Factor-1) levels. Increased levels of IGF-1 has now been implicated in several cancers.
- In interventional animal experiments and human experiments, dairy protein has been shown to promote increased cholesterol levels (in the human studies and animal studies) and atherosclerosis (in the animal studies).
- The primary milk protein (casein) promotes cancer initiated by a carcinogen in experimental animal studies.
- Higher milk intake is linked to acne.

Which brings me to my last point.

Pharmaceutical companies are right outside of being a trillion dollar business, yes trillion with a t, and they spend billions lobbying our federal government annually.

How does all of this tie into global warming?

It's become a game of smoke and mirrors.

We have scientist, politicians and environmental agencies that all agree that global warming exist - as if the melting glaciers weren't an obvious clue - yet, they are telling us that we all need to make changes in our lifestyle AND THAT will do very little to actually solve the problem.

A pair of images show the retreat of Pedersen Glacier in Alaska between 1917 and 2005

If we were to invest in wind and solar, it would take more than 20 years and cost trillions of dollars and that's not to mention that without some type of government program like cash for clunkers or the rebate offered to replace appliances - the average American just wouldn't be able to make those types of changes.

On the other hand, if we were to change our diets, the changes would go into effect immediately.

It's our lust for beef that is actually killing the planet and marching us slowly to our own demise in the process.

As the beef industry becomes more and more global and the demand for beef rises, so does the number of cattle needed to meet that demand.

So farmers raise more cattle, clear more land for that cattle, cut down rainforest and other buffers that decrease the amount of gases being captured in the earth's atmosphere.

We consume more and more of these products that are now so pumped up with antibiotics that those antibiotics that we once trusted to cure certain illnesses have become less effective.

Then we funnel tons of cash into pills to maintain our blood pressure, lower our cholesterol or for medical services to keep us alive while cancer slowly destroys our bodies.

At the exact same time we ridicule vegans.

In case you don't know what a vegan is - Veganism is a way of living which seeks to exclude, as far as is possible and practicable, all forms of exploitation of, and cruelty to, animals for food, clothing or any other purpose.

I hate to say it but when you consider that agriculture can be blamed for global warming, among other things including starvation. If the amount of grain that is used to feed cattle were to be fed to humans, it would end starvation.

But back to my point, when consider that it is mainly the agriculture industry that's causing global warming and destroying the planet...shouldn't we eliminate it?

Yes, I love hamburgers, a nice steak, cook outs, and KFC. I hate to have oatmeal in the morning without a tall glass of milk.

But if putting all of those things to the side in order to help create a more sustainable planet AND lower my risk of living with some sort of disease or worse yet dying at an early age...then sign me up!

If I've sold you and you want to learn more about how to responsibly sustain the planet please visit - <https://www.vegansociety.com/try-vegan/definition-veganism>

Fun Witch Facts

- Halloween is not the only night that witches celebrate. Other holidays include Beltane, which marks the first day of May, and Midsummer's Eve, which coincides with the Summer solstice.
- Not all witches are Wiccan, although many are. Witches follow many religions and also none. There are atheist witches, just as there are Christian witches, Jewish witches, Buddhist witches, and witches who follow virtually any other religion you can name.
- Witches are worshiped. Among the most famous witch goddesses are Hecate, Diana, Lilith, and Freya.
- The witch goddess Circe inspired what is considered the first ballet in 1581.
- Witches have historically been associated with dancing. The waltz derives from dances enjoyed at secret witches' balls during the 16th century. It was initially very scandalous.
- Witches perform many roles. Rather than being dangerous, they tend to be of service to others.

evil freak who murders luscious ladies and puts them on display in his wax museum. Maybe I'm weird, but yeah, I think this is a very sexy movie!

7. THE RETURN OF DRACULA (1958)

This little-known “B” movie is a lost gem. It’s strangely sexual. Dracula, played by suave European actor Francis Lederer, returns to a suburban California town, posing as the long lost relative of a local family. Naturally, there’s a nubile teen girl in the fam who falls under his suave spell. The quietly seductive vibe between Dracula and a typical 1950’s Cali chick is downright steamy and strange. This black and white flick also features a graphic “stake thru the heart” sequence filmed in gory blood-red color!

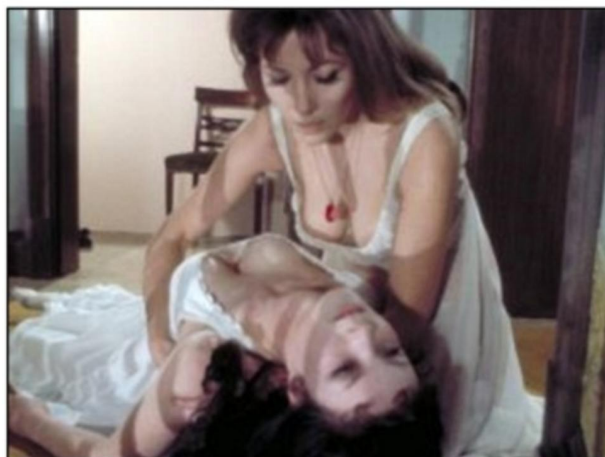

6. THE BRAIN THAT WOULDN’T DIE (1962)

Okay, so she doesn’t have boobies! In fact, she doesn’t even have a body! This babe is just a head on a lab table in a pan of fluid, hooked up to various drains, wires and creepy stuff! . But I think she’s one of the sexiest ladies in horror! I could make a naughty joke about heads, but hey, I’m a bit classier than that, okay?! Virginia Leith plays Jan Compton, whose surgeon fiancée saves her decapitated head from a car wreck and searches for a voluptuous body to re-attach. Jan’s sultry head has more sex appeal than most babes with a bod! She’s really the main attraction in this low budget fabulousness. Her throaty, parched voice, pleading “Let me die!” will send chills down your spine. I saw this as a kid and had nightmares! I still do!

5. THE VAMPIRE LOVERS (aka CAMILLA) (1970)

Lesbian vampires – yes, please! There’s nothing hotter than vampire babes bending lustfully over each other’s warm, writhing bodies, biting tender necks. The 70’s seemed to be the high point for Hammer-style horror flicks, an era when lesbo themes were still taboo, combined with a solid mix of old school horror elements. Camilla , a nympho vamp seeking revenge against a small village, seduces and drinks the blood of males and females alike. Brief frontal nudity is in the uncut version. This is an erotic, tasty treat with fabulous sets, costumes and great entertainment value. A classic of the genre starring bodacious horror icon Ingrid Pitt.

4. EYE OF THE DEVIL (1966)

Honey's Top 10 Sexy Horror Flicks

October is my favorite month. Why? Because it's the spooky time of year when I indulge my guilty pleasure: watching the best (and worst) horror movies! And of course, grabbing a spot on my Top 10 list means it MUST be sexy! What would a horror flick be without heaving bosoms, plunging cleavage and ravishing lesbo vampires? So, here are my personal faves, the movies that have earned a very special place in my dark and kinky heart!

10. VILLAGE OF THE GIANTS (1965)

This flick contains one of my all-time fave scenes: giant mutated juvenile delinquent teens launch into a wild slow-motion booty shakin go-go dance. Blond babe Joyce Harmon bounces her boobies and butt in what must have been every guy's wet dream at the drive-in! And even more cool is listening to the iconic acoustic surfer music by Jack Nitzsche which is also used on the soundtrack of Quentin Tarantino's "Deathproof". Ultra freakin' sexy!

9. BLOOD AND BLACK LACE (1971)

Directed by Mario Bava, the king of Italian horror, Blood and Black Lace is all about the atmosphere, baby! Like so many European thriller/horror flicks, it's the colors, the sexuality, the music, and the style that matter. This is no lowbudget slasher pic. It's sexy with a capital "S". A faceless maniac is murdering models in a fashion house. Who will be next? Mario Bava always delivers whenever I need a "fix" of pure, saturated hotness.

8. HOUSE OF WAX (1953)

The original 1953 version, not the remake! Why do I think House of Wax is a sexy flick? Well, there's just something hot about a woman in wax! (As long as she's not melting, of course!) Lifelike, but not really alive. She looks real, but is she? Vincent Price, the master maniac, is utterly fabulous as the

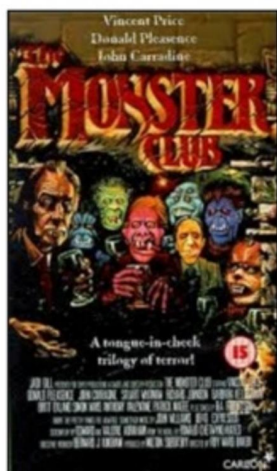

During her tragically brief life, Sharon Tate appeared in several unique movies. I'm a big fan of her work. Eye Of The Devil was her debut performance and she brings a sleekly sinister Euro style to this unusual film. Her character, Odile, is a witch who lives with her equally beautiful warlock brother in a French chateau. Hmmmm. Blood sacrifices, authentically filmed pagan rituals, atmospheric French locations and a sinfully beautiful Sharon looking chillingly witchy - what more could a horror freak want? It's the perfect flick for a drizzly Sunday pre-Halloween afternoon.

3. CAT PEOPLE (1942)

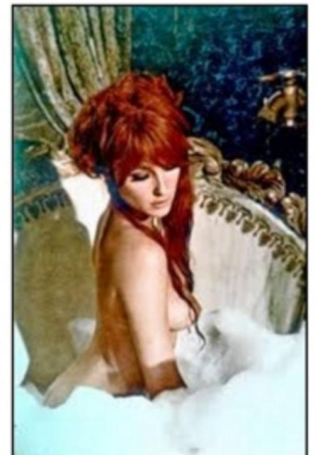

I love Cat People! Not the crappy remake, but the original 1942 version, Irena is a mysterious hottie chick from a weird race of beings who morph into cats when sexually aroused. Meowwww! A guy kisses Irena the Cat Woman and she transforms into a black panther. Damn! She runs off to the zoo, jumps in a panther cage and is destroyed by her fellow feline. Starring the ultra seductive French actress Simone Simon. Cult Classic!

2. THE MONSTER CLUB (1981)

Welcome to the Monster Club, where the monsters come to party! I fell in love with this quirky film the first time I saw it. Not many people have heard of Monster Club, but it's a cult classic adored by loyal fans. Check out a clip on Youtube and you'll get the idea. It's one of those stylish and extremely underrated movies that somehow fell through the cracks. It also features some kickass 80's punk music! It's actually a trilogy of three horror stories, each with their own cast and plot. Sexy Swedish bombshell Britt Ekland is the star of one of them,. She's the wife of a vampire, and she's a knockout as a charmingly loyal spouse protecting her hardworking vampire hubby!

1. THE FEARLESS VAMPIRE KILLERS (1967)

At the very top of my "must see" list is the The Fearless Vampire Killers starring the hauntingly beautiful Sharon Tate. She portrays an innocent maiden named Sara who encounters freaky vampires lusting after her innocent yet steamy bod.

Merely laying eyes on the otherworldly beauty of Sharon Tate is a rare treasure worth the price of admission.

A sensuous, unique and highly recommended horror flick if you're in the mood for a frightfully lovely tale that's way off the beaten path!

So, lovers, that's my list! All of these unique flicks are available on DVD, please do check 'em out and in the meantime.....have a very sexy Halloween! XXXXOOOO
